A representative example

Loan amount $10 000 borrowed and fully repaid after 12 months of using the loan. Total amount payable = $11 072. The fee would be $1 072.
